Compare the NASH SIX SEDAN, Quality by Quality With others from $300 to $600 higher in Price

THE more careful the comparison you make on this basis, the more impressed you will be with the fact that this beautiful and luxurious motor car is really an exceptional value at its price.

It combines every quality you demand in a high grade closed car, great power, elegance in fittings and appointments, spacious comfort and that dependability of performance which distinguishes all cars bearing the Nash name.

You will decide, just as Nash owners agree, that there are few cars within $300 to $600 of its price that even approximate it in value.

Compare its price of $2895, with cord tires, f. o. b. Kenosha, with that of other cars approaching it in quality and you will realize what a really attractive investment it offers.

Inexpensive Perfection in Farm Buildings

Practical experience, no less than scientific test, has definitely settled the fact that the wooden house is dryer and warmer than one built of any other material. It is therefore more healthful and more comfortable. This is just as true of the barns which shelter your stock as of the house which shelters your family.

We can show you a wood—North Carolina Pine—with which you can build your home, barns, sheds, silo, etc., at low cost and with every assurance of complete satisfaction.

If you are interested in up-to-date farm buildings we can get for you free an excellent book which ordinarily retails for $1.00. It contains plans, elevations and details of practically every kind of farm building.

Pay Your Loans Promptly

Motion is the first law of the universe, and of banking. Therefore a Bank whose short-time paper does not move, violates the first law of its being, and incurs risk and possible loss.

All 30, 60 or 90 day loans are made on the pre-assumption of their payment at maturity. It would be unsafe for a Bank to make a practice of tying up its funds for longer periods.

Is your Kitchen Work Wearing you out?

A woman who knew just how many Kitchen troubles could be avoided by a good range helped our experts design the

Sterling Range

The range that bakes a barrel of flour with one hod of coal.

The experts worked out the scientific flue and grate system so that it would bake and cook with the least amount of fuel. The woman added the graceful plain lines so easy to keep clean. The polished top which requires no blacking. The key plate that lifts and fastens up for feeding and broiling. The easy opening oven door and many other step and back saving features which only a woman knows how to appreciate.

You will appreciate a Sterling.

Millions for a New Stomach

One of the greatest American millionaires said to his physician, "A million dollars, Doctor, spot cash and no grumbling, for a new stomach," and then the sick man groaned and turned away. All his wealth could not make him happy or contented, for happiness largely depends upon digestion. Without health where does happiness come in? After all the stomach plays a great part in everyday life. Without a healthy stomach and good digestion our blood is thin, watery and poor, our heart action is weak, our liver does not do its duty, and man is miserable and unhappy. Prevent disease by putting the house in order and strengthening the system against the germs of disease.

Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., years ago understood diseases and their prevention, and he discovered certain roots and herbs which were nature's remedies, and succeeded in putting them up in a form that could be easily procured at the drug store (liquid or tablets). This he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This Discovery gives no false stimulation because it contains no alcohol or any narcotic. It helps digestion and the assimilation of such elements in the food as are required for the blood. It gives to the blood the food elements the tissues require. For over fifty years it has enjoyed the confidence of the American public. Try it now!

FLUFFY AND THE FIRE

IT WAS raining hard. Ada stood by the window with Fluffy in her arms, the dog's wet nose pressed against the pane, while the child's tears flowed silently down her cheeks and on to Fluffy's curly head.

For Fluffy was to be sent away into the country. Ada, who was motherless, had been sent to live with her Aunt Pauline, but the aunt did not like dogs and decided to send the pet out to her farm. The news broke Ada's heart.

"I think I will take a nap, Ada," said Aunt Pauline, as she went to her room. "Run to the store for me and get this list, but leave the dog here, as it might give you trouble on the street."

So Ada went out and Fluffy lay down on a rug in the hall, curling up her pink nose in her shaggy hair.

Aunt Pauline lay down in her room and left an alcohol stove burning by the open window to make hot water for tea.

Soon all was quiet. Aunt Pauline was sleeping soundly and did not know that the curtains were caught by the breeze and blown direct into the flame of the lamp.

They caught fire and soon flame and smoke began to fill the flat. Fluffy woke up. Quick as a wink she tore down the hall and into Aunt Pauline's room, where the sleeper still lay, unconscious of harm.

Jumping on the bed, Fluffy began to bark and scratch at the covers in the wildest fashion. Then she pushed her shaggy head into Aunt Pauline's face.

With a start the sleeper sprang to her feet and tumbled out on the floor. The room was filled with smoke that poured into the hall, and the blazing curtains had caught the flames so fiercely that several pictures were afire. A moment later and the fire would have gotten over the whole flat and both Fluffy and Aunt Pauline would have been burned.

But seeing a moment's lift in the smoke, Aunt Pauline dashed to the bathroom and, getting a pail of water, managed, by making several trips, to put out the flames.

Then, tired and exhausted with the excitement, she sat down in tears in the front room with little Fluffy curled in her lap.

Presently the door opened and in came Ada. The smoky room, the wet floor, a weeping woman with the dog in her lap, astonished the child.

"Why, what on earth has happened?" exclaimed Ada. "And why is Fluffy scorched and lying in your lap?"

Aunt Pauline burst into a new flood of tears and hugged Fluffy closer.

"What has happened!" she exclaimed. "Why, everything. When I was asleep the curtains caught fire from the stove and set the room afire—I would have burned to death had not Fluffy jumped on the bed and awakened me."

"Oh, I am so proud of darling Fluffy," exclaimed Ada. "Wasn't that smart and good of her to do that?"

"She is the best doggie in the world," cried Aunt Pauline as she went to the cupboard and got out a bit of chicken and some milk. "We will never speak again of her going away. Fluffy must stay right here, and she shall have milk and chicken for dinner every day. Then that pretty rug in my room will be her bed every night."

A very happy party there was that night after the gas was lighted and the dinner had been cleared away. Fluffy sat on the sofa while Ada and Aunt Pauline made pretty bows for her neck and praised her up as the best little dog in the world.

How It Started

MAPS.

THE earliest known maps were those of Sargon, king of Akaad, in Babylonia, which existed 3800 B. C. These were topographical plans used for purposes of taxation. The first map of the world is credited to Anaximander, who lived about 560 B. C.; but the real founder of map-making and the study of geography was Aristotle, who first exploited the theory that the earth is round.

HOME-MADE COSMETICS

SO MANY very particular women choose to make their own cosmetics that the making has become almost a fad. The woman who can make her own creams knows them to be pure, and knows she can get three times the quality and quantity for less than the price of the purchased article.

Cold creams are easily made, if one has a good recipe. The oils and waxes are melted slowly in a double boiler, the waters added slowly and the whole beaten and beaten as it cools, until a light frothy cream results. Powders are more difficult to make. I never advise their manufacture at home. It is cheaper to purchase unscented rice powder, a large quantity of which can be bought for half a dollar, and to perfume or tint this at home. Bleaches are best made at home, hair tonics mixed by a good druggist according to prescription.

If You Make Your Own Cosmetics You Know Their Quality.

Then one can purchase artistic jars and bottles and fill these with the preparations, the jars being an ornament to the dressing table, not a detriment, as most purchased affairs are. Then, too, one can buy a little of a desired expensive perfume, and use it for scenting all one's toilet requisites.

[illegible] can choose some distinctive [illegible] keep to it, instead of mixing odors into one indiscrimination.

[illegible] a good cream, glycerine and rose water, face and talcum powder, vaseline for nails and eyebrows, and a nail polish are all a woman really needs, ordinarily.

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

DOUBLE NEGATIVES.

ALTHOUGH the double negative—that is, the use of two words to express the negative when one is needed—is found in early English and in other languages, its use in English nowadays is incorrect. The use of such phrases as "She don't want none," "I can't do no more," "We don't know nothing," etc., marks the careless speaker. They are found seldom in writing, since the very act of writing, save in letters by the uneducated, induces a more careful selection of words than does speaking.

Shakespeare says, "I cannot go no further," but in this the unsurpassed writer probably followed the usage of his own times; a modern writer or speaker would say, "I can go no further," or "I cannot go any further."

Similar to the use of the double negatives, and similarly erroneous, are such sentences as the following: "I haven't had hardly a night's sleep," "I cannot get but one suit of clothes." Say, "I have had hardly a night's sleep;" "I can get but one suit."

IN PRINCESS MODE

Old Favorite Is Returning in New York Fashions.

Colonial Line With Bustled and Panniered Hips, Wasp Waist and Berthaed Neck.

Manhattan's winter season of lobster cocktails and grand opera will be a shady season as far as feminine regalia is concerned, according to a New York fashion writer.

Each day on the avenue brings out new evening creations of hue as somber as the proverbial raven's wing. Wholesalers, retailers and dapper salesmen say that this is the aftermath of the orgy of color in evening gowns worn directly after the war-time habiliments of mourning were cast aside.

Whatever the cause, the truth is that the fluffy-ruffly ingenue girly-girly frock of pastel-tinted tulle and chiffon, or some gorgeous, lustrous satin bespangled with rhinestones, has given the right of way to stately and matronly figure-swathing gowns of jet, chiffon velvet, brocaded satin of midnight black with jet-black sequins or the same materials developed in dull brown, green, midnight blues or the least possible shade of any color.

The old princess line is returning. Some modistes are endeavoring to break this similar line to the street moyen age and chemise dresses by developing the colonial line with bustled and panniered hips, wasp waist and berthaed neck. A certain house on Fifth avenue which boasts a name to conjure with in the fashion world has just brought forth this big-hips-small-waistline in a bridal gown of heavy ivory satin. A heavy wire at the hips swells the dimensions of the frock several feet. The belt is more than snug and the round girlish neck is finished with a cascade of old lace. The same design is developed in olive colored velvet most effectively.

However, although the smart houses are showing these models, society is not seizing the style eagerly. It is the snug, simple princess line that will be seen on special occasions.

These "midnight gowns" are far from being altogether somber, as their dullness of hue is always contrasted with some note of elaborate color. Thus, one stunning model of heavy jet velvet uses a huge carved ivory rose of flame color as a corsage. Shoulder straps of flame velvet and a long train of flame tulle complete the costume.

A really spectacular model is developed in white satin with corsage of black and white chiffon roses and train of jet beads falling from the right shoulder. These shoulder drops are almost entirely supplanting the bona fide train. The evening costume is completed by a touch of both face and hair powder to match the gown. Lavender, rose, blue and green face powders are as common for evening wear as white. Flesh and gold powders are used for the coiffure.

CHIC SEMI-TAILORED MODEL

In Siberian squirrel gray is this charming semi-tailored model. The front and back panels are longer than the skirt and are very fashionable.

SEPARATE SKIRT FOR WINTER

Garment Is in Demand Because of the Popularity of Sweaters and Short Fur Coats.

Sweaters and short fur coats both make a demand for separate skirts. Therefore, these skirts are likely to be worn through the winter, both in fancy plaid woolens and in the regulation navy blue serge. Wool jersey is another favorite material for the separate skirt.

The vogue of heavy weight material for skirts is largely on account of the shorter coats that promise to be used this winter, and that call for more protection than was given by the satins and silk materials used for wear under the long coat.

Apart from plaits, embroidery and stitching are a few favored forms of trimming. Where the skirt is made up plain, a band of some kind of embroidery is used around the bottom.

Gray wool embroidery on navy blue serge is well thought of and frequently seen. Colored cross stitching that suggests a broken plaid was used last season and is still considered quite good.

SLEEVE STYLES ARE VARIED

Numerous Types of Arm Covering for Late Fall Garments—Seven-Eighths Length Favorite.

Sleeves are not the least important part of the autumn mode. The long sleeve has the most prominent place and is of a variety of types.

Frocks made of soft materials prefer to have their sleeves tight over the arm even though they are kimono cut and loose over the shoulder.

In the heavy materials the sleeves are very often wide as well as long.

A great favorite with the mode is the seven-eighths sleeve. This sleeve is frequently bell shaped and embroidered or trimmed with fur at the lower edge.

In many of the smartest evening gowns, sleeves are conspicuous by their absence. In others, there are little fluted caps at the top of the arm.

Evening gowns for restaurant wear choose long, loose, lace sleeves, which are often very elaborately trimmed with metal embroidery.

Moyen Age Frocks.

Everywhere, at the openings of the great Paris houses, were high collars, long sleeves, and lines reminiscent of the moyen age. Though this high-necked and long-sleeved mode is new—an ultra note—it is not likely to be the prevailing style in America this winter, though it will make its first appearance. It will have a tendency, however, to make the open-necked dress a little higher, and the sleeves undoubtedly will be long, sometimes close fitting or sometimes flaring.—Good Housekeeping.

The Ironing Board.

An ironing board should be padded so that it has spring, but not so that it is like a cushion; if padded too much, the iron will sink down and mark the garment that is being ironed. Heavy felt or the double-faced cotton flannel such as is used on a dining table makes an especially good pad for an ironing board. The width of this material will cover the length of the board. The pad should be made wide enough to turn over the sides, and about two inches should be allowed on all sides for shrinkage.

PLAIN SUITS FOR SERVICE

Tailored Model, Plain or Plaid, Regarded as Most Practical for All-Around Wear.

The best suit purchase, the one that will certainly give the longest service, is the perfectly plain tailored model, whether of plain color or plaid fabric. Novelties in suits are shown in great numbers, but as a matter of fact the woman who gets the most for her money in the matter of clothes, buys novel and more or less elaborate things for home and evening wear and adheres to rather severe lines when selecting garments for street wear, no matter whether a frock or suit is under consideration.

A plain tailored suit is good just as long as it lasts, as skirt length is never settled by any cut-and-dried style rule. Skirt width is pretty nearly as individual a subject. The woman decides how wide or how long her skirt shall be, with Dame Fashion's recommendations used merely as a guide.

Suit manufacturers bring out all sorts of novelties and oddities every season in the hope of stimulating a big business in suits. Bargain sales at the end of each season usually find a good many of these novelties and oddities waiting for purchasers. This season sees a suit line featuring the fitted basque bodice, the redingote or directoire type of garment, the straight hip length coat and the conventional semi-fitted coat, strictly tailored.

With all this variety, however, according to present indications, the straight line conventional suit will be the favorite.

Plaids and checks and a few attractive mixtures give variety to the fabric lineup.

Beaded Bags in Lead.

Beaded bags are much in style and handsomer than ever. There are still newer creations on the market in leather, but the beaded ones are uppermost in favor.

Sapphire and Black.

Combinations of sapphire and black are favored in millinery.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets that are Nausealess, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nausealess colomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One Calotab on the tongue at bed time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Druggists sell Calotabs only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if you do not find them delightful.—(Adv.)
